

Kimberly Mensh Weinberg is the founder of Coach In Motion, a Washington, D.C. area based coaching and consulting firm that provides services in executive, group and personal advancement. Kim specializes in coaching executives and leaders to help them capitalize on their full potential. She partners with them to establish challenging and rewarding goals that can be obtained through engaging exploration, direct feedback, applicable tools and assessments, skill development, and evaluations. Her style is an extraordinary blend of candor, compassion, energy, insight, and goal-driven motivation. Kim also offers a unique service for many clients which combines talk-time with exercise. This active process combines mental exploration with physical activity to generate energy and create a powerful synergy.

Prior to coaching, Kim was President of Human Capital Development where she consulted to executives and companies on strategic planning and alignment, organizational change, group facilitation, and leadership development. Kim also served as Vice President, Corporate Development for On Campus Marketing (OCM), based in Bethesda, MD. While in this position, she helped grow the company from 12 to 125 employees through rapid expansion, in addition to designing and leading the human resources integration of a company merger.

Prior to OCM, Kim was a senior consultant in Training and Organization Development for the Student Loan Marketing Association (Sallie Mae). In this role, she consulted to all levels of management and staff on organizational effectiveness and leadership. While at Sallie Mae, she created the Corporate University, implemented the company-wide Quality initiative, assimilated HR practices into management responsibilities, and developed and delivered extensive training.

Kim is certified from the Leadership Coaching Program at Georgetown University. She also holds a Masters of Science degree in Organization Development from the American University and a Bachelor of Arts degree in Communications, Psychology, and Organizations from Tulane University. Kim has been SPHR certified (Senior Professional Human Resources), and possesses several other quality and human development certifications. Her client list includes Fortune 500 and small organizations; public and private; profit and non-profit industries.

Currently Kim is active in the Young Presidents Organization (YPO) where she is a Chapter Executive Board Member, Spouse Officer, and the Moderator for a forum. Additionally, she champions events for the development of CEO's, Presidents, Spouses and Family members. She also enjoys competing in triathlons, adventure travel, reading, and spending quality time with family and friends.
